Important Caveat

I am not a classroom teacher.

I teach online personal and professional development.

People hire me to explicitly learn – humanistic approaches.

Technique 1: Witnessing

Core Value: Freedom of Belief

Goal: Share and invite comparison

- Witnessing – this is how I think
- Proselytizing – this is how YOU should think.

Technique 2: Socratic Questioning

Core Value: Critical Thinking
Goal – encourage thinking

- Ask questions about what is good or bad and encourage discussion.
  - Don't lead – let them think through the problem for themselves
  - Let them define “good” for themselves

Technique 3: Encourage Compassion

Core Values: Compassion & Dignity
Goal: Individual Growth & Learning

- Model Dignity
- Concern for Wellbeing
- OK to disagree
- Plant seeds

Does this work for any topic?

How do you do this – in a chemistry class for example?

- Why were these things researched in the first place? What problems were they trying to solve? - History
- What was found? - Knowledge
- How are we using this information now to improve people's lives? – Compassion and Responsibility
- Result – Deep Learning.

Matter combined, against all odds and against its tendency towards entropy to create you! If that doesn't make you feel special, nothing will.

How do you live your values?

“Humanism is a democratic and ethical life stance that affirms that human beings have the right and responsibility to give meaning and shape to their own lives. Humanism stands for the building of a more humane society through an ethics based on human and other natural values in a spirit of reason and free inquiry through human capabilities.”

Ideas Beyond Borders

We're partnered with youth and young adults across the region to make vital, but often controversial or banned ideas accessible to Arabic, Farsi, and Kurdish speakers everywhere. We certify and empower each of our translators, and work diligently to translate and distribute topics ranging from civil rights, mental and reproductive health, and women's rights to evolution and the NASA website.
